" MUCH THE REMAINS UNIONG" From the Metropolitus for Julie.)

It is customery at St. Johns, Newfoundland, at Halifax, Nova Scotta, as well as in many other situations where for are frequent and dense, to fire a gun every hour, as a guide or warning to any nearly the man he may be ones.

and dense, to fire a gun the coase.
THE FOG GUN. The day is closing on the sea—
A day of storm and dread—
The trembling ship meets wearily
Each wave's foam created head:
The cranking poles like willows how
To still increasing blusts:
The gallant crow, exhausted now,
Are clinging to the masts,
And calling on the saitor's Friend,
His strong and pitying aid to lend.
They diffusions before the gain,—

His strong and antying and to tend.
They drift along before the gain,—
Whither they cannot know.
For the fog is hanging like a veil
Around them as they go.
Darker and darker grows the day,
Loud and more loud the atorm,
The fog so dense each sailor may
Scarce see his neighbor's form.
The brave turn pale to think that by The brave turn pale to think that night May yield them to the wild sea's might A mother with her only child

Is in the ways-tost back,
And as the tempest grows more wild,
The eve more drear and dark.
She clasps the baby to her heart,
And press for him alone;
For she is ready to depart,
So ha, her precious non-So he, her precious one, Might stillbe saved by him who trod O'er raging waves-the Son of Ged! And others, who, few hours before,

Is in the wave-tost back,

Were full of joy and hope,
All telling of the days of yoro,
And giving boundless scope
To visions of their future hours—
Alust how altered gow!
The gayest of the hopeful cow'rs,
The young girl bends her brow.
And weeps that over dreams so fair
Should fall the shadow of despair.

Shoeld fall the shadow orderpair:
A sound comes booming o'er the deep,
Solemn, and sad, and slow;
Yet instantly the sailors leap
Once more to man the prow.
The mother's tears fail thick and fast
Upon her haby's face:
She trusts that they may reach at last
Their home, their native place,
And though she did not weep for ear,
She weeps at thought of sufety near.
The young are full of hope again, The young are full of hope again,
The grat hath dried her eyes.
White through the fog and driving rain
The labiding ressel flust.
Again, again the welcome scund,
Neuronal moneration.

Nearer and nearer still; It cometa from their native ground— The steep and well known hill Frowns through the evening's darkening glooms As once again the Fog guns booms. They pass at length the guarded fort,

They pass the rocky height,
And now within the sheltering port
They're sife from Ocean's might,
One cheer, one loud, long, grateful cheer,
Bursts forth from ev'ry lip.
As, in their welcome r st, they hear
The sound that left their ship,
And brought them o'er the raging sea,
To the calm port "where they would be."

DOMESTIC. A friend at Niagara Falls gives the following account of a most heroic adventure which occurred there on Thursday last. The ardent expressions of the writer are most natural under the excitement caused by the scene which he describes - National Gazette Correspondence of the National Gazette. NIAGARA FALLS, July 25. There is a man living within the sound of these glo rious Falls, named Joel Robinson, who deserves to be immortalized as the hero of an adventure, which, for intrepidity and gullantry, has never been excelled. The new bridge connecting Iris island with the American shore, is, you are aware, built over the Rapids, scarcely a quarter of a mile above the Fall. The chan nel is here filled with rocks, and the current, covered with foam, dashes along at the rate of more than twenty miles an hour. A workman named Chapin, engaged in covering the bridge, this afternoon accidentally slipped, and was precipitated into the whirl below. He was carried with fearful rapidity down the stream, and destruction seemed inevitable, notwithstanding his vio-lent and well directed exertions in swimming. He did more than a numeric and they years worke the Fall, and alter repeated attempts gained a footing. But here a fate even more fearful seemed to await him; for, how was assistance to be rendered to one in the middle of the river surrounded by this raging torrent? Crowds of course collected-numbers of projects were formed, but none seemed feasible. For more than an hour the doomed man stood wistfully regarding the thronging thousands, among whom were collected his agonized wife and family; while hope of his rescue seemed gradually declining in the minds of all

At last, this man, Joel Robinson, arrived from the village, and looking towards the unfortunate, exclaimed, "He must die if he remains there; I think I may save him, at least I'll try." And try he did. The discussion of his friends availed not, and he asked for a boat 1 looked at the man-he appeared neither very large no strong-but his head, phrenologically, was finely deve-

I observed his arm was in a sling, and asking the cause he said that, at a saw mill yesterday, his thumb had been accidentally cut off and his fingers badly bruised. A skiff, light and frail, was brought from the Canada side, the during man took his seat, to rush, as all thought, to his destruction. As the skill shot out a shudder ran through the multitude; down the current it rushed with fearful velocity and vain seemed his efforts to seem the roaring flood; but soon with one stout pull he reached an eddy formed by the rocks, where the bark rode safely until his strength was recruited for further action. And again from eddy to eddy did he beautifully guide his bark until the island was reached; a shout overpow ering Niagara's roar told the leeling of thousands But, see! as he springs to land he slips and fulls! His boat is torn from him! No! he yet clings to it! but ! stem the current is impossible - onward it dashes and nears the brink of the cataract—another moment and— it pauses; an eddy has intervened to save him. He is again in the skiff, and pulling for the island; this time be is successful, affects a landing and waves his but in triumph, and is answered by another shout. But is he yet safe? Not yet. The most difficult task is yet to be accomplished; again he pushes off with a double freight in the frail boat-manfully he struggles, resting in the eddies, and new, with one great effort he gains the

The place where they landed is not fifty yards above the Fall. The rapids commence three fourths of a mile above the island. When it is recollected that this island has never been landed on before; the fearful rapidity of the current; the danger of dashing so light a boat t atoms sgainst the rocks; the absence of any ties of to the saved man, and the almost certain pros pect of death in the attempt, no words can express the honor due for such an act of heroism.

The boat containing the unfortunate carpenter and his gallant preserver was hoisted upon the shoulders of men and carried in triumph through the village, amid the shouts of thousands who had been spectators of this thrilling scene.

A subscription was taken up on the spot when the landed, and the sum of two hundred dollars was pre-sented to the hero of Niagara, who, I am proud to say, is an American.

HIGHFIELD COCOONERY PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9 - We found time, on Wed nesday afternoon, to improve, to our own pleasure, the delightful weather, by driving to the farm of Philip Physic, Esq , in the north part of Germantown, and examining the Highfield Coconery, which that gentleman has, by an immense expenditure, established. The position selected is highly favorable; the land is good, and. on a pleasant elevation overlooking the town and rich scenery south, is erected the co-conery, a building 120 feet long, and 35 feet wide, 3 stories high.

In one room of the basement of this building is a handsome steam engine for propelling the machinery, and with it parts of the appliances of the establishment; adioming is a repository for leaves, where they are kept dry, without withering; and beyond are culinary arrange-

Above this, are the apartments for the family use which, as we were within the prescribed limits of dinner, say 3 and 5, we saw were not useless Above this, we saw a small room in which the eggs of the silk worm are hatched, and learned that, in a single morning, no less than thirty five thousand were hatched

The feeding room, which is also the place where the spinning is done, is an immense hall, supplied with rows of shelves, in which were hardles for the worms, many thousands of which, of different sizes, were eating a heartily as if they were dining out; arrangements were made immediately above the hurdles for spinning, or formation of the cocouns. The galleries between these ranges of shelves were laid with railways, and becomotive steps for reaching the different hurdles were placed on the rails, so that the persons thus employed could move along with entire case. On the very summit of the building is a reservoir which will contain about thirty five hogsheads of water from which pipes descend to every room, and, to differ. ent parts of the same room. This reservoir is supplied with a well near the building, the water from which is pumped, and is conveyed up to the house, a distance of sixty three feet by dog power. That is, a large wheel, about ten feet in diameter, is turned by a dog, who amuses himself by running inside of it, like a squirrel in a cage This is no involuntary labor, the dogs take to the wheel as kindly as if they were after a rabbit.

On the ground East of the building are grewing about four hundred thousand Morus Multicaulis trees, all apparently thrifty. Of these we perceive that Mr. Wolbert will sell at auction two hundred and fifty thousand in September, leaving enough to furnish a good supply for the establishment in the coming year. The whole for the establishment in the country year. The ward arrangements of the Highfield Coconery are made with an evident intention of carrying the business through all its stages, not to depend on the profits of an enlarged demand for trees, or any adventitious circumstances, but to make the cultivation of the tree, and the manufacture of silk, a business of the place -U. (From the Arkansas Gazate, July 17) WASHINGTON COUNTY MURDER - We gather the following particulars of this atrocious homicide, from a let ter from Washington county, published in the Batesville

News of the 4 h inst. "The most herrible murder ever perpetrated in a Christian country, was committed last Saturday night, at Cane Hill, on Mr. William Wright and four of his children. Mrs. Wright states that soon after retiring to bed, she heard the sound of horsemen approaching the house. Her timidity suggested the apprehension that they might be hostile Indians. She awoke her husband and communicated her fears, and both arose. Mrs. Wright, through a crack by the door, discovered three men walk up to the door. One asked if they could stay all night: Mr Wright answered yes, and opened the door. The robbers at that moment seized and stabbed him to death. Mrs Wright fied out of the back door. A d ughter, (perhaps the oldest,) rushed out by the assassins, while yet butchering her father Mr. Wright being despatched, the fiends commenced slaughtering his defenceless children. They struck out the brains of a little in ant, on the floor, and run their bowie knives through the tender bodies of three other children, as they reposed in the embraces of a sweet sleep. The fourth, a little boy, of some ten or twelve years, with a long, heavy blade, the demons, at a blow, separated the crown from the mass of his head, striking him into insensibility, but not into death, as they sup posed. Fortunately, two other children, sleeping in an outer apartment, were not discovered. Also, little Morris escaped their observation. This little child, of six of seven years only, had been placed at the back side of a transle bed, thus hiding him from the eyes of the murdeters | Little Morris was awake, and with the wisdom of mature years bay in breathless stillness, eyeing from beneath the folds of the bed furniture, the strange deeds of murder, robbery and arson

"From this intelligent child we learned, that after eve ry eye beneath this ill fated roof, as they supposed, had been closed in death and every tongue silenced forever, the robbers proceeded to plunder the house of all the money, set it on fire, and galloped off. Little Morris, after satisfying himself that the murderers were gone, m ved from his hiding place, and commenced with as tonishing intelligence, to rescue all from the ruins of the rapidly advancing flames. He ran and awoke his little sisters and horried them out of the burning dwellingreturned, and found his wounded brother restored to consciousness. His ferble strength being unequal to his weight, Morris threw his arms around the shoulders of his almost murdered brother, and tenderly drew him beyond the influence of the increasing fire-returned, caught up the intant, but finding it liteless, gently laid it down a few paces from the door, on the breast of the father. He then essayed to return for the hieless bodies of the others, but the fire now having wrapped the door in flames forbid his entrance. Seeing his angel like purpose thwarted, he, with his little sisters and brother, sought such a resting place as a houseless farm and clear say afforded. The daughter that escaped at the outert took r-fage in a ryefield. Mrs. Wright made her way some mile and a alf, or two miles, barefooted, and in her night dress to her friends.

> STOP THE SWINDLER. One Hundred Dollars Reward.

N the 27th day of July last a man, who called him-self Wm Burshall, sold me a negro in Richmond, for which I gave him seven hundred and seventy six dollars and ninety cents. Said negro ran away from me in half an hour after i paid for him; and it appears, from the best information I can get, that Burshall's real name is Stephen Jones, who is a carpenter, and resides near King George Courthouse. It appears, that the negro-belongs to a Mrs Cheves of King George county, and was hired to Stephen Jones. 1 will give the above reward for the apprehension of Burshall, alias Jones, and the recovery of the money. I have good reason to believe the said Jones conveyed the negro back from Richmond to King George county, where he has been since seen. I will give fifty dollars reward for the swindler alone -I understand said Jones has several brothers in King George county. He was seen in Alexandria on Friday morning, the 2d inst. probably on his way to Missouri, where, I understand, he intends moving
